

How we work

Bond of quality

- Our work aligns with the needs of children and adolescents, irrespective of their religious, ethnic, or cultural backgrounds. Our projects focus on socially disadvantaged and poverty-stricken girls and boys. Our work aims at sustainably improving their lives, their opportunities and perspectives – individually and structurally.
- It is important to us that all people, especially children and adolescents, are treated with loving respect and benevolence. Projects supported by us foster the growth of personality as a whole.
- We advocate the rights of children and adolescents, especially their right to physical and emotional integrity, as well as their right to independently develop their talents and skills. Whenever possible, we strengthen the family environments of children and adolescents in need.
- The permanent local presence of the Salesians of Don Bosco ensures the sustainability of the programs and projects supported by us. Their local knowledge and experience with cultural specificities, as well as their professional and educational competence is the key to our work's efficacy.
- Commitment and professionalism on behalf of all our employees and close communication with experts from other institutions are the basis for maintaining all relevant standards. We take great care that all our funds are put to use in a targeted and efficient manner. That is why we control the efficacy and the sustainable results of our work by means of monitoring, evaluating and continuous quality management.
- We regard ourselves as partner and service provider for our private and institutional sponsors. We forge alliances, build networks, and cooperate with like-minded associations, foundations and institutions to boost the efficacy of our efforts for young people. By means of responsibility, transparency, a partnership approach, and communication we build the foundation for a trustful cooperation on a long-term basis.
- We consider ourselves as creative, motivated and committed professionals, who continuously expand their skills, who plan and monitor their work responsibly, and who also promote this spirit internally.
